City Clerk J. P. Hammarlund this morning balanced the detailed report of the receipts and expenditures for the year ending April 15, 1915. The figures show that the financial condition of Janesville is most flourishing, due to the strict economy of the commission form of government, for not in recent years has there been such large balances left in the funds at the end of the year in April. The grand total of the receipts for this year on April 15th amounted to $582,248.67 and a year ago from that date the total was $533,226.12, an increase of $49,022.55. BOOST ROCK COUNTY
WITH POSTERETTES

Stickers Will Proclaim Janesville's Place in Front Rank in Advancing Agricultural Thought.

A half million posterettes proclaiming Rock county as the foremost county in the state in its attitude toward advanced agricultural thought, and the plan proposed by the Janesville committee of the Janesville commercial club to advertise the stand that Janesville has taken in joining hands with the farmers to place the work of agriculture before any other business or profession.

In Janesville a start has been made to enroll the farmer, the most important citizen in the community, in the commercial club. This idea itself is the forerunner of an agricultural propaganda that must be worked hard at each day in the year and never for a moment rest a moment. It puts for the work of Janesville and Rock county away in advance of customary efforts. But an enormous amount of work must be undertaken before agricultural comes into its own in the thoughts of the rising generation. Every man, woman and child in Janesville needs to be roused anew each day to this greatest of all industries and occupations. To foster this ideal and put it to work, the Janesville Commercial club has adopted a practical plan in which all can take part. The getting up of a suitable emblem, emblem representing Rock county agricultural interests, to affix as a miniature poster on all out-going mail, so that all mail matter in Janesville and leaving Janesville, may carry the story of Rock county agricultural plan to all corners of the United States.

FROST DOES DAMAGE TO GREEN TOBACCO

Crops in Vicinity of Janesville Show Effects of Last Night's Low Temperature.

Tobacco in the vicinity of Janesville, especially that located in the lowlands, shows the effects of the frost of last night, according to growers and dealers. The late tobacco especially was touched and the top leaves of the eastern crop which have been topped lately also show damage. While the frost was not hard enough to cause anything like a total loss, it has made a damaged crop and consequently will lessen its value. Growers complain that the crop is not ripening as it should and blame the cold weather for the fact. It is feared that the tobacco will be subject to various diseases which result in the shedding of green crops, or those not sufficiently ripened.

YOUNG SCOTTY WILL APPEAR IN BELOIT

Jones Island Featherweight to Battle Monte Dale at Beloit, September Eighth—Heavyweights in Main Bout.

Janesville boxing fans are awakened after the summer's lull and two bouts are attracting the attention of the local sports followers. Tonight Johnny Dundee, the New York heavyweight, one of the real championship contenders, meets Ritchie Mitchell, the Milwaukee pride, for ten rounds in Milwaukee. Mitchell is the most popular boxer in recent years in Milwaukee and just recently graduated from the featherweight ranks, in which he was very successful as a boxer but not as a fighter. Mitchell could never be classed under this title.

It is the general opinion that Dundee, if right, carries too many guns for the shifty Milwaukee lad and will land a victory tonight. The "wop" has met and defeated the best of the division and has a record of boxing that is hard to follow. Physically small, he battles the bigger lightweight by hopping from the floor and striking while in the air. Mitchell's experience against such a boxer is limited and he may have trouble in solving Dundee's attack.

LEAKY SKIES HALTS GAME WITH FAIRIES

Cardinals and Beloit Fairies Unable to Clash for Diamond Supremacy Owing to Diverse Weather.

No game, Main. That tells the complete story of why the hearts of Janesville and Beloit fans were saddened Sunday afternoon, because of the overabundance of moisture prevented the Janesville Cardinals and Beloit Fairies from contesting on the diamond. The Cardinals were scheduled to play Beloit at 2 o'clock, but the rain started coming down early in the afternoon, just after the Beloit team arrived and it poured for two hours. ### EAST VERSUS WEST ON TENNIS COURTS

Intersectional Stars Clash for Titles at Forest Hills Long Island—Championships at Stake.

For East is East and West is West. "And near the twin shall meet." The national tennis championships, and there was blood in the eyes of the Western invaders. To the strictly neutral correspondent, however, there appeared to be an equal amount of gore in the eyes of the Eastern defenders, for they were fighting for the retention of their titles, and for what is infinitely steeper to Eastern hearts—the East's athletic prestige, which has suffered slightly of late. So, all things considered, early indications pointed to a "bird of a scrap." No holds were barred.

The East counted on four men to bear the brunt of the fury of the Western attack—R. Norris Williams of Philadelphia, present holder of the national title, Karl Behr, middleweight champion, and all around star, and George Church, intercollegiate champion, and young sensation. Behind these four, in massed array, stood a galaxy of near stars, would-be stars, has-beens, and merely persons with white pants.

Headed by the slashing, driving, titan-haired McLoughlin, far off California had four entries that represented the attacking power of Sunset section, and it was an awe-inspiring front. The Big Hope was placed on McLoughlin, of course, just as it was some time ago when the Davis cup was in danger and a comparison of the Eastern and Western offensive and defensive strength shimmered down to the question of how much chance the big pair—Williams and Behr—have of beating the comet-like westerner.

"Good chance," said the East. "Fat chance," said the West. And there you are. McLoughlin has to take the offensive, as the title already is Williams'. But that phase of tennis playing, according to the red-headed one's supporters, is where he shines. One thing was being pointed to by East, and adherents of the fact, that McLoughlin lowered his colors once this year at Seabright, N. J., to Karl Behr. Then Williams turned around and beat Behr. That much of the dope favored Williams today. But no tennis enthusiast has forgotten how the reserve of Wilding and Brooks last year in the Davis cup matches broke under the terrific drives and slashing returns of McLoughlin, and how he, at that time, earned him the title of the world's best.

Flanking McLoughlin for the West's attack were "Wild Bill" Johnston, Ward Lawson, and Thomas Bundy. McLoughlin's partner in possession of the national doubles title.

Today's events were for the most part merely warm-ups for the real matches. The rookies were being seeded, and the underbrush cleared away for the regular fight. That the play finally would narrow down to Williams and McLoughlin, few had any doubt. Behr, the most dangerous entrants of the lot, doesn't stack up with the former pair, in the opinion of tennis critics. He can be regarded, they opine, as a distinctly dangerous dark horse.

One of the largest crowds that ever attended the championships was in the stands as play commenced.

Edgerton News

Edgerton, Aug. 30.—Contractor Lehmann has completed the first stretch of pavement from East Fulton street to the Heildes Lumber Co. offices and has moved to the Cemetery to begin work. Beyond this stretch each side of the road will be a ditch which will carry the surface water to the new cement culvert at the foot of the hill and thence to the marsh at the brick yard.

This will give the road a perfect drainage and will overcome the previous condition which existed. The sub grade and all the fills have been properly attended to and it will not make in danger of much longer repair. The road will be closed for 20 days after the cement is laid to give it time to set and then the city will have a pavement that they may well be proud of.

(Notices furnished by the theatres.)

AT MYERS THEATRE.

"His Highness the Bey" Tonight. Arthur Clamage and his big musical revue opens a week's engagement of musical comedy at popular prices at the Myers tonight.

The play selected for this evening is the musical play "His Highness the Bey," which recently enjoyed a long and successful run at the La Salle theatre, Chicago.

Besides a large and well balanced company of singers, dancers, comedians and pretty girls, Mr. Clamage also carries a large number of well known vaudeville acts, including the Orpheum Comedy Four, a quartet of melodious singers and laugh-provokers; The Barbary Coast Trio, Whirlwind Tango Dancers; The Eagle and the Girl, a wonderful contrivance in which a pretty young miss is carried out over the audience by a huge eagle, apparently defying the laws of gravity.

During the engagement here there will be an entire change of program each evening and the management guarantees that every play will be beautifully costumed and correctly staged.

Tomorrow evening "The Pink Widow" will be given. There will be bar-bainethree on Wednesday, Friday, Saturday and Sunday.

All cigarettes are pure, but—purity alone doesn't make a cigarette SENSIBLE. We don't know of a single one of our competitors who doesn't make his cigarettes of pure tobacco.

But a pure cigarette that didn't taste just right wouldn't do for you, would it? And to be really sensible a cigarette must give you more than purity and a good taste.

It must be cool and friendly to your throat and tongue. And it must leave you feeling fine after smoking all day.

Fatimas are not the only cigarette that measure up to all these requirements. There are other sensible ones.

But Fatimas seem to have a big margin in their favor on their good taste. Otherwise they could not outsell all other cigarettes costing over 5c.

You can't tell whether they will just suit your taste until you try them.

At the same time, you can easily prove how sensible they are by these two tests.

Most men who try Fatimas say "Good Bye!" to all other cigarettes right away. That's why Fatimas sell so fast.

Why don't you try Fatimas today?

Two Tests for ANY CIGARETTE

The taste of the cigarette—according to a leading tobacco journal—is up to the smoker. But there are other qualities that you should look for in the cigarette. Here are a couple of tests that may help the average smoker to choose more wisely between different brands of cigarettes.

The first test is for coolness, which means more comfort to the throat and tongue. Light any cigarette. Draw in it and hold it for a few seconds. If it feels cool in your mouth for a few seconds, it is a good cigarette. If it feels hot, it is a bad cigarette.

The second test is for the proportion of the cigarette. If the cigarette is too long, it will be too hard to smoke. If it is too short, it will be too easy to smoke. A good cigarette will be just right.

Clip out these tests and try them on Fatima.

LAWRENCE C. WHITTET.

While no man knows just what our Governor, Emanuel L. Philipp, plans for his political future, whether to again become a candidate for the gubernatorial nomination or to make the race for the United States Senate, rest assured the tax payers of the state are with him. They appreciate his efforts in their behalf and realize what he did accomplish was against almost insurmountable odds.

Should he decide to become a candidate for the United States Senate, the next problem is to find a candidate for governor to continue the labors he began. To place in nomination a man who is in accord with the great work of redemption of the state from the grasp of the "tax eaters" and give it back to the tax payers, with a government for the people, by the people and of the people. In this connection the Gazette suggests the name of Lawrence C. Whittet, late speaker of the assembly and member of the Wisconsin legislature from the first assembly district of Rock county.

Mr. Whittet is not unknown to the voters of the state as a whole. His work as speaker of the assembly has brought him into prominence with all factions of republicans or democrats. His admirable fairness in handling the various duties delegated to him to manage. His unbiased vote on questions of importance and his hearty support of the program laid out by the man who sought to redeem the state from the grasp of the experimentalists and theorists who would increase the burden of the working man without giving them anything in return, makes him the only logical candidate for governor on the Republican ticket in 1916 from the tax payers point of view.

There is no necessity to introduce Mr. Whittet to the citizens of the state. His record stands for itself. Honest in his convictions he voted as duty called him. Fearless in his support of the cause of the taxpayer, he took the floor in debate and as speaker he was impartial and showed cool judgment and judicial mind, so essential to the chief executive of a state going through the throes of political upheaval as in Wisconsin.

Mr. Whittet is not seeking any political preferment; should Governor Philipp decide to again seek the office of governor, he is willing to do his part in the readjustment of affairs, political. He will serve as a soldier in the ranks if called upon, but should the governor decide to combat the "Wisconsin Ideal" which has proven to be merely a God of clay, then the Gazette bespeaks the well wishes of every citizen of the state that appreciates good government, government for the people, by the people and of the people, in behalf of Mr. Whittet's candidacy.

A POLITICAL ACCIDENT.

This is the way the Connellsville Courier of Connellsville, Pennsylvania characterizes the present Wilson administration. It is not harsh in its denunciation of the failure of the Washington administration but it says:

The democratic administration is a political accident and the country has been the victim of a series of administrative accidents ever since The New Freedom was proclaimed by the new Jefferson in the old Washington. The Democratic party sneaked into power and glory while the Republicans were having a rather strenuous family quarrel. The latter are not without some blame in the matter, but they are preparing to right the situation as soon as possible. In the meantime, the Democratic party seems to have done its worst, and if it leaves the country alone the unusual conditions will enable the people to pull through after a fashion.

It is worse than useless, however, for the Democratic organs to try to justify the Democratic policies. In their appeal to the people in the campaign of 1912, the Democrats declared that the Republican High Tariff made High Living Costs, and that a revision of the same along Democratic lines would reduce the cost of living, increase the public revenues and stimulate the activity of American industries.

The Tariff was revised by the strong-arm process, but in its operation not a single Democratic promise was redeemed. Instead of decreasing the cost of living increased; so far from being enhanced, the public revenues dwindled so that the public treasury now faces a deficit, and finally, the industrial world was plunged into a period of depression which threw two-thirds of the workmen out of employment, where they would have been today if a European war of gigantic extent and general devastating influence had not started our mills and mines on the uplift again.

TURKISH ATROCITIES.

While the source of the following information is not to be made public in fear of the serious penalties that may be inflicted upon the lives of honest God Fearing Americans who are seeking to spread the Gospel of Christ in foreign countries, this is a story of Turkish atrocities, unparalleled. The story of the wholesale murders, the heinous tortures and the deportation of women and children seems almost beyond belief out from the source it comes it is authentic and must be believed. It is a tale of horror hard to believe and the report says that.

The atrocities now committed in Turkey surpass anything that has ever preceded even in the painful days of Abdul the Arch Assassin. They are carefully planned and diabolically executed, and the torture of the most degradation that separates families and sends large numbers of the victims to inevitable death.

In one prosperous city twelve of the leading Armenian men were taken out upon the road under great pretense of deportation. A few hours later the guards returned alone. A few days later 300 or more men followed the same path to death. This method is being duplicated everywhere in the interior of Turkey.

Women and children, old men and invalids are driven from their homes at the point of the bayonet and sent along different routes covering many days, even weeks of travel. No preparations for the journey are made or permitted. Children born upon the road are strangled by the mother who is forbidden to lag behind the caravan of death. Those too ill are left alone by the roadside to die. One German woman following a caravan picked up fifteen children in one day and left by their parents who could not carry them.

The women who survive the journey are scattered among Moslem families in Mohammedan villages where the alternatives before them are Islam or death. This method of extermination is going on from Smyrna to Persia and from the Black Sea to the Mediterranean. Some entire Armenian towns have been depopulated. Moslems from Macedonia have been brought in to occupy the houses.

A German official recently told an Armenian who was traveling in the country that they were out to eliminate the Christian races in Turkey. They are succeeding and there is none to raise a protest. Turkey is now free to satisfy her thirst for blood and destruction and to carry out the suggestions made by her masters in Europe. Never in Moslem history has there been such a riot of crime and carnage aimed at the annihilation of the Armenian and Greek races whose only fault is that they are not Moslems.

Poland is one of the worst sufferers from the present war unless it be Belgium. However, Belgium's restoration to a Kingdom will be one of the terms of peace demanded not only by the Allies but by the world at large while poor Poland will continue to suffer under either Russian or German regimes.

Ex-President Taft, being a grandpa now, can smile just when and where he pleases. There is one consolation and that is that our E-president did not lose his smile even though barely discredited by his alleged friends as evidenced by the return of the last national election.

One of the saddest effects of this war is that it has muddled up the tariff issues and the democrats have nothing to crow over and the Republicans nothing to blame, lack of business to do on that score.

There is one consideration that is most pleasing to the advocates of temperance. Despite reverses the Russians have not yet fallen back upon vodka although they have been doing a lot of retreating for some weeks past.

Line up gentlemen for Labor Day. It is coming along shortly and then, well, then the fall and winter season begins without even a fairly good acquaintance with summer.

Does any little boy or girl remember what happens regularly after the first September each year? If so, step to the head of the class and start in on another year's work.

There is one consolation. The supply of peaches this year is reported as exceptionally fine. It is something to think of anyway.

SEARCH FOR HUSBAND IS WITHOUT RESULTS

Mrs. R. Garnett has returned to her home in the Chicago ghetto. To a home where the future brightens deep responsibilities to the little lonely woman who came here but a few days ago to search for her husband on a farm near the city. "It was a fearful little woman who boarded the North-western train this morning. Her eyes showed she realized the gravity of the situation and dreaded the future. The future with its possibilities without her husband."

Last summer Dave came to Rock county and worked on a farm. His wife remained in Chicago until Dave had been in the country for some time. Then he returned to her and the winter was spent in planning for just another summer's work and then—well then perhaps Dave and Rosy would move onto a farm, away from the ghetto. They would be so happy.

Summer came again and Dave planned to go again to his farm work. But he left some five weeks ago, and then waited and watched for the letter that did not come. The days grew into weeks and Rosy could wait no longer. She must find Dave. Perhaps he was sick. She had a great secret to tell him and so she came to Janesville last week, confident he would be quickly located.

Inquiry at the Taylor farm disclosed Dave was there and nothing was known of his whereabouts. In fact there was no trace of Dave. No one seems to know what became of him after he kissed Rosy goodbye in Chicago and started on his way away. She refuses to be comforted.

Without funds, she appealed to the authorities for aid, but people of her own religion came to her aid and she went back to the lonely little home where she waited and watched for the missing husband. The authorities are skeptical, but now that Dave can be found he will be told of his wife and her devotion.

RELIGIOUS TRAINING AND ITS NECESSITY IN LIFE EMPHASIZED

Catholic Diocese Archbishop Requests Priests Yesterday to Urge Attendance to Parish Schools.

Religious education and the urgent need that Catholic parents give their children religious training in the parish schools were subjects upon which practically every parish of the Milwaukee diocese by pastors and their assistants, yesterday, letters from Archbishop Sheen, emphasizing instructions to parish heads were mailed last week to every parish.

The matter was elucidated at all the masses at St. Patrick's Catholic church. At the ten o'clock services the Rev. Fr. William Mahoney spoke on the subject.

The convent school opens next week at the same time as the public institutions of the city. In view of his discourse was highly opportune.

Fr. Mahoney covered his topic briefly and he cited facts and statements to illustrate the necessity of religious training to fit the present generation for its world work. Religion as essential to success, was the theme of his discourse.

He said, "The training of children in the public schools on the one side, but the drawback here is that the spiritual is not played upon enough to reach the truth that leading toward the spiritual to the extent it is in a denominational institution."

"In the public school," the priest said, "the child is told not to tell an untruth because of the principle of the thing. In the parish school he is admonished to be truthful by 'Thou shalt not bear false witness against thy neighbor.' Similarly in the Catholic school the child is told, 'Thou shalt not steal,' against the teaching of the public school that stealing will lower the estimation that people have of him and that it is a disgrace."

"The morals of the young in the Catholic school are guided and moulded by the use of the ten commandments of God, the principles of the faith, the constant presence of God, and together with his training for business in other lines he develops a true Christian character."

"Take for instance our higher Catholic schools. They look over their registry lists and you will find therein the names of students of practically every religious belief under the sun. Catholics and Protestants, Jews, Hindus and other denominations have been sent to these schools by their parents, not because of whimsical oddities, but because that education, the parents know, will give their children the same training that is not to be secured elsewhere."

That it is the uneducated man that prevails in the ghetto as a social evil is the belief of Father Mahoney. The point was forcefully illustrated and proved.

"Take a trip through our prisons and penal institutions and inquire of those confined there of their education and of the offenses for which they are confined," he said. "The most dangerous crook and the one most skillful in the world is the one who is educated. He embodies every feature of a personage likely to be worth while in the world were he not kept here to offset a menace to society. He is highly educated, but somewhere he lacks a certain development."

"True you will find the uneducated man here, but the educated man is much more in evidence. He is generally a hard-working, honest, and of good character. There are exceptions, but in the general run of human nature this is the type that makes possible the great things of the world."

"Had the criminal's moral side been educated to the extent of his other, it is safe to say that he would not be serving time. This is the opinion of the world's big men of the nation and of the world all agree on the matter."

To bring out and prove more clearly his statement Father Mahoney read from the speeches of ex-presidents, cabinet officers, college presidents and others, extracts pertaining to religious training as essential to the development of man for his life's work.

ITALIAN IS AGAIN SENT TO THE JAIL

Frank Gulick Fails to Make Plea and Goes Back to Jail—Busy Morning in Court.

No solution was reached in the case of Frank Gulick this morning, the adjournment practice again being evident when the Italian was arraigned before Judge Maxfield for wife desertion for the third time. His wife and small daughter with number of other husbands, were in court and all were disappointed when Gulick went back to jail again, this time until September second, in default of bail.

Gulick, it will be remembered, was arrested for "beating it" to Chicago after he had been released on the promise to obtain work and support his family. After his wife and daughter had been provided for, he "showed up" quickly and wanted them to go back to him. They did, and Gulick was rearrested.

This morning, Gulick told the court that he wanted to go to work but did not understand what it meant to plead guilty or not guilty, to the charge of wife desertion. He was committed to the county jail while his wife went back to the friendly Italian home, who have sheltered her, until the court is able to dispose of her husband and get him out of jail to work.

SIDE TALKS

BY RUTH CAMERON

THE ESSENTIALS.

"It is admirable to give a child a sponge bath at night. Especially in summer this tends to refresh him and make him sleep better."

The little mother who is so anxious to do things just right read that aloud from a magazine.

Her voice was anxious. "I don't see how I can get to do that," she said. "It's about all I can do to get the children to bed before dinner-time. You see I have to wash their faces and wash their hands, clean their teeth, spray their throats with Ralph's eyes with borax (they're a little weak), and rub the baby's back with olive oil. If I give the baby a sponge bath every night I know I'd be late to dinner and that would make Robert cross. He says I fuss over them too much now."

Poor Little Mother! And Poor Little Father Too.

And in a lesser degree, poor Robert too.

The education of mothers through magazine articles in the essentials of proper child care is surely a splendid thing, one of the finest things the printed word has ever done. But done and overdone are two different things and there are times when I think the first has passed into the second.

To give one child all the details of care recommended in our various magazines would take most of one woman's time. Obviously for one woman to give that care to two or three children and do even the supervising of the household (we take one servant for granted, as anything of the sort would be entirely impossible without) would be nerve-racking, heart-breaking, life-sapping. It would be no opportunity to be a wife and a woman as well as a mother.

The Woman Who Drive Herself to Suicide.

Perhaps you read in the newspapers not long ago of the suicide of a young mother. Her husband said that he believed her over-anxiety to do the right thing by her baby drove her to the step. "She was so afraid that she wouldn't do everything exactly right that she became obsessed," he said. "She would go all to pieces if she found a hair on the baby's bottle after boiling."

This case was extreme, but I know more than one woman who is headed in that direction. They lose their sense of proportion. They think too much about it all. They strain at things that should be simple and natural.

Do You Remember When Homes Were Run For Grown-Ups?

Do you remember the days, reader friends, when children in a household were supposed to conform to the routine of grown-ups instead of having a separate routine elaborately created and painfully maintained for them? That wasn't entirely right of course, but isn't the new regime as much on the other side of the line? Wouldn't mothers and children and homes all be better off and happier if mothers wouldn't worry quite so much over being mothers?

To pick out the essentials in this cult of child care and reject the details that are good enough in their way but that only a specialist has time for—that is the task of the modern mother.

One quality and only one will make her equal to it, that misnamed virtue—common sense.

Household Hints

CANNING AND PRESERVING.

Heat sugar in oven before making jelly; will tell quicker.

If the kettle in which syrup for canning is being boiled is greased with butter two inches down from top, it will not boil over.

When you are about to put away your jellies, jams and preserves, place a bowl of lime in the closet where they are stored. It will prevent mold from gathering on the fruit. Or, if you have a damp cupboard, a small box filled with lime will also absorb the moisture.

Large Cucumbers Sliced.—Four tablespoons mustard, one teaspoon turmeric, one and one-half cups sugar, one cup flour. Mix to a paste. Cold water, add to three pints boiling vinegar. Add two dozen large cucumbers that have been sliced thick and stood in salt water overnight. Put two cucumbers and canals.

By adding a little whipped cream to one-half pint of these and potatoes that have been cut up, you can have a delicious potato salad with little work, as you need no other salad dressing.

Green Tomato Mincemeat.—Chop five four quarts green tomatoes drain off all juice, cover with cold water, let come to a boil and scald thirty minutes. Then drain well. Repeat till parboiled three times. Add two pounds brown sugar, one pound seeded raisins, half pound chopped citron, one large half cup finely chopped nut, one tablespoon salt, and half cup cider vinegar. Stir well together and cook till thick. When cold add one teaspoon each ground cinnamon and cloves and one tablespoon grated nutmeg. Stir thoroughly and keep in a stone jar.

THE TABLE.

Gefuertes Fish (Jewish style).—Take two pounds trout or "yellow pike," cut in two-inch slices, remove skin from one side, salt and pepper. Chop one onion, add salt, pepper, and mix with one egg and fine cracker crumbs to a paste, lay the paste in the fish, put back the skin, boil the fish with water to cover salt, pepper, sliced onion, one carrot, one sprig of parsley cut fine, "speck" of cloves and allspice. Let boil two hours, then add one tablespoon rich cream. Serve cold.

Noodles for Gefuertes Fish.—Make stiff noodle dough; roll out very thin and cut into ribbons one-half inch wide, let dry a little, boil in salted water, drain in a colander. Fry some sliced onions in butter; until soft, add noodles, stir and serve hot.

Poor Man's Dumplings.—One egg, one-half cup milk, one-half cup sugar, one teaspoon baking powder, and four to make batter same as pancake batter. Place spoonful of dough, then berries or apple (any kind of fruit), then another spoonful of dough, then fruit, then last a spoonful of dough. This makes four large cups of dumplings and they are excellent. Set in boiling water and cook slowly thirty minutes. The cups will be full. Fine for the poor man.

Baked Beans Cooked On Top of Stove.—Two pounds soup beans, one pound bacon cut in small pieces, large onion or two small, one pint bottle catsup, sugar and salt to taste but don't put in until beans are cooked soft. Put beans, bacon, onion and catsup in four quarts of water, put on stove and let cook. Will bake just as brown as in oven. Don't cover with lid.

Cucumber Fritters.—Use one large cucumber sliced and soaked ten minutes in salt water. Two cups sweet milk, one-half teaspoon salt, four eggs, one cup flour, one cup sugar, one egg. After stirring well, add two heaping teaspoons baking powder, one tablespoon sugar. Thoroughly mix, then add cucumbers. Fry in hot fat until a rich brown. Be sure batter is quite stiff and that each slice of cucumber is covered.

Poor Man's Cake.—Take three eggs and two cups of sugar and beat till well dissolved. Add six teaspoons (heaping) baking powder, two tablespoons melted butter, one and one-half cups milk and enough flour to make a thick dough. Add more milk occasionally, stirring constantly until it has become a thin dough. Pour into greased pan and bake in moderate oven about forty minutes. This recipe makes a condensed cake. It may be made in two other forms: (1) Pour half the mixture in a greased pan and sprinkle with cinnamon. Add the other half. This is looks is similar to the marble cake. (2) Bake in layers with any desired fruit between. Any of these three cakes may be either white or chocolate frosting.

MRS. WOODS LEAVES FOR NEW YORK CITY

Will Meet Passengers of the Arabic in Hopes That She May Learn Something of Dr. Woods' Fate.

Mrs. Woods left Janesville on Sunday for New York City where she expects to meet passengers of the Arabic who were on the Arabic at the time it was sunk by the German submarine, in hopes that they may be able to tell her something definitely in regard to her husband. Dr. E. F. Woods, she will meet the American line steamer St. Paul which carries a majority of Arabic passengers.

A letter was received by Mrs. Woods from the White Star line on Thursday last, in which hope was held out that Dr. Woods may have been rescued by English or Norwegian vessels, but this is considered highly improbable.

Mrs. Woods, who has been pros- trated since the news of the Arabic disaster, is still in poor health and will be accompanied on her trip to New York by her sister, Mrs. Wonn of Chicago. She insisted that she was well enough to stand the ordeal of meeting the fellow passengers of her husband.

Glimpses of Married Life

BY MRS. EVA LEONARD

"I tell you, Parsons, Doc is getting too easy," Dick said, unconcerned. "Let's play a joke on him."

"Trot out your joke," Parsons said, looking at Dick with a suspicious glance. "You're up to something, aren't you?"

"I have it!" Dick said, suddenly, and slipped his knee over Parsons' foot. "You'll turn in a hurry call from the dago quarter, and when he gets down he can speak English and no one will know who called for a doctor and he will have a long."

"Let's have it an injury from fall or something like that; everyone would naturally know about such a thing and their ignorance will finally make him see light," suggested Parsons.

"Good! We can hire a boy to rush into a drug store and tell the proprietor to call Dr. Ellison, then skip out before he can get a word in edgewise, chuckle over the possibilities of his plan. 'While he is gone Nell must call Olive over to our house and keep her there, so that he will come back to our own house. The doctor will be at our house and when he appears we will suggest that it is up to him to feed us. He'll do that, all right.'"

"It will be a good thing to tell Ole Jacobson, who keeps the restaurant, that Dr. Ellison will probably be taken with a desire to feed six people this evening so he will not keep us waiting too long," put in Parsons.

"Good hunt! Give him time and he'll come up a meal not half bad," said Dick approvingly.

The details of the scheme had been worked out with care. As soon as the phone call was turned on, the conspirators hurried to Dick's house and Nell called up Olive.

"You and the doctor come over," she said over the wire. "The Parsons are here. Not at home?"

"You come then. He'll be here. And you when he gets back. I'll send Dick to walk over with you." Dick was at that moment waiting with his hand on the doorknob and when Nell nodded her head he snat out of the door.

After an hour of poking around in dirty cabins and being answered with "I dunno" or a shrug of the shoulders, it finally dawned on Dr. Ellison that he was the goat and he chugged his machine and hurried for home. Everything was dark there and locked securely. He put up his machine and let himself into the house to see if there was any note for him.

"I know where she is," he reflected when nothing was found, and started for the front door.

"Was the man bad?" he asked. "His injuries were mostly in his eye." The doctor was looking at the two men.

"How terrible!" exclaimed Olive, but the men burst out laughing. "And his feelings were badly hurt," continued the doctor. Olive looked from one to the other in bewilderment.

"If you see that he has nourishing food he will come out all right," suggested Parsons.

"Yes, I told Jacobson that I thought from present indications that you would be hungry at about nine o'clock," mocked Dick. Light broke over Olive's face.

"The eats are up to you, Doc, and the phone is at your service," Dick said, looking on the back.

"Send out something especially indigestible for these two men," he called over the phone. "I'll get even with them by refusing to give them any medicine." He grinned as he hung up the receiver.

Stories gain so much in the telling. No. It is silly of him to fuss over it.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am a school girl fifteen years old and have known a young man since I was a baby. He and his father have their place of business quite near our home. He is now married, but I am not acquainted with his wife. The same friendship lies between us as when I was only ten years of age. Now, while on my vacation I sent cards to my friends and naturally sent one to him, a plain souvenir card. Last week when I returned his wife came to our home to see me and scolded me dreadfully for sending the card. Now Mrs. Thompson, do you think that I did wrong when I sent him the card? Do you think she did right by her harshness? Kindly advise me what I should do in order to make things right.

ANNIOUS.

The woman surely must have been joking when she scolded you. I would forget the matter, girlie; it isn't worth worrying about. The next time you have a good opportunity to send a card send one to Mr. and Mrs. feelings are friendly toward her.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am a rather homesy girl. Can you advise anything that would make me look better? And can you suggest anything to make the eyes pretty? Your answer will be greatly appreciated.

ANNIOUS.

Be neat in your person, appearance and make your manners as gentle and pleasing as you can. This will go a long way toward making you attractive and well-liked and will help more than any amount of decorating you can do to your features. To make your eyes pretty dash cold water on them three times every time you wash. Eat moderately, and take a great deal of exercise. Heavy eating and inertia make the eyes dull.

There is no place you can dispose of any thing as quickly and cheaply as through a classified ad. Try it and be convinced.

Letters May Be Addressed To Mrs. Thompson, in Care of The Gazette.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I have been going steady with a young man, two years my senior, for nine months, and lately we broke up for good. I was engaged to him and loved him dearly and I know he cared for me. The question is, as it was my fault, should I be the one to take the blame? He knows I care and so is cordially very stubborn toward me. He has a terrible temper and becomes so angry he has actually struck me. Is it my fault? I love him and I am jealous, or what?

(2) I am only eighteen. Do you feel that I understand this affair or am I foolish?

(3) He lives in another town and since our falling out I've heard he was not true to me, although he always said he was. I don't want to hear of him again. I hate to see him with no more facts than what I have heard.

(4) He came up one night to see me and I wasn't home. He was proved over to and has his eye on me as long as he can without my knowing it.

(5) A man who will strike a girl before marriage will be unbearably cruel to her afterward. He is a brute and does not love you and should not have done it. Don't think of going to him for reconciliation, because he is not worth it. If you do he will only continue to be unkind in the future.

(6) You are probably too young to know what love is. The brute force and stubbornness in the man fascinates you. This affair is no indication that you are fickle, because fickleness means inconsistency.

(7) I wouldn't believe what I

The Fight in the Cabin.

Benton's cabin had been burned six months ago, Noreen told me, and the old man was believed to be dead. Few others ever used this cut-off, or had occasion to pass this way, and the weeds had quickly taken possession. I was obliged to feel for the worn trail, as it wound here and there along the slope of the hill, and then finally down a shallow depression toward the river bank. The horses stepped cautiously, pressed closely together in the narrow rut, and the only noise was the occasional stumble of a hoof. Thus we came down to the shore. My memory of the spot was hazy and uncertain.

"Have you ever crossed here?" I asked doubtfully. "I scarcely remember where the ford lies."

"Yes," she replied, leaning forward, "with my father a year ago."

"We'll ride together, but keep your feet free in the stirrups."

"I am not in the least frightened. Don't worry about me," and she held out her hand. "You'll not find me a bad soldier."

"I am certain of that—not if you are still the same girl I played with."

Her hand was in mine, and was not withdrawn.

"I hardly think I am," she answered soberly, a little catch in her voice. "I am not a girl at all any more, but I keep something of the same spirit, I hope."

I have never understood what a girl there was about her to keep me silent. I had never before lacked audacity, yet I dare not speak the words that were on my lips. The thought had taken firm possession of my mind that she was the victim of circumstances; that she accompanied me merely to escape from threatened danger. I knew I loved her; the touch of her hand sent a wild thrill through me, and my heart throbbed to the memory that she was actually my wife. But I dare not permit her to even guess the truth, for I felt that she regretted the weakness of that moment and would resent the slightest reference to it. I released her hand, venturing upon no reply, and we rode down the steep bank. The sullen sweep of the water, out of the darkness above, into the darkness below, and the brooding silence, lay hold on my nerves. We drew in under the shadows of the wooded bank, pushed our way through to the top of the rise, came suddenly to an open space, where a dozen acres had been cleared, and rode out boldly across the open field to the Hot Springs pike, clearly visible beneath the soft gleam of the stars.

I know not how long we rode, or how far, for my mind had drifted into a review of the night's adventures, and a plan for the morrow. We met with no one, heard no noise except the steady pounding of our horse's hoofs. A little later the sky to the east began to lighten in the promise of dawn. We climbed a long hill, our horses slowing to the ascent, and by the time we attained the summit the gray light revealed our faces. I looked across at her, and her eyes, uplifted suddenly to mine, smiled.

"You are worn out," I said.

"I am tired," she confessed. "I have been two days and nights without sleep. If I could only rest for an hour."

"You shall—all day long. We will find a place in which to hide down there in the valley."

The road led winding down between rocky banks into a narrow valley, hemmed in by great hills, and watered by a small stream. As we paused to let the thirsty animals drink, the increasing daylight gave me glimpse of a bridge path skirting the edge of the stream along the west bank. The path turned sharply to the right, and as we mounted to the slightly higher ground we could see the cabin perched on a little knoll, against the black hill behind.

Surely nothing about the shanty, or its immediate surroundings, indicated present occupancy. Yet when I finally advanced it was with caution, and a strange sense of expectation. Noreen followed closely behind, treading almost in my footsteps, as noiseless as a fawn, her skirts held close about her limbs. At the edge of the woods she stood motionless as I went crouching forward. The cabin was not deserted, in spite of its desolate outward appearance. Opposite me was an open fireplace, an iron kettle sitting in the ashes, while a short-barreled rifle stood upright in a corner. On one of the stools lay a broad-brimmed hat, and a pair of ragged corduroy trousers hung on a wooden peg beside the unbarred door. I motioned to her to join me. In spite of the lines of weariness in her face the light of the dawn revealed a beauty that caused my heart to throb. Her eyes silently questioned me, and I explained quickly what discovery I had made.

"But the man may return," she said doubtfully.

"Of course, although I imagine he has disappeared for the day. If he is hiding out he may not dare to remain here in daylight. Anyway, you can rest safely, for I am not in need of any sleep. I napped in my cell yesterday, and just a short doze will serve me. But you are terribly tired—it is in your eyes."

"Yes," she confessed, "I must sleep somewhere."

"Then come; we'll find a bite to eat and a place for you to lie down."

I opened the door noiselessly, although I took no special precaution, and held it wide, while she stepped across the threshold, and stood looking curiously about. Then I closed it behind us, and we were in a sort of twilight, amid which objects appeared rather indistinct.

"Ah," I said, "the fellow's cupboard must be over yonder. I hope he keeps it well stocked."

I stepped across in front of her, with no other thought than that of exploring the larder, when she gave vent to a startled cry, and I stopped suddenly, sweeping my eyes about to learn the cause of alarm. The ragged quilt was on the floor, and a man leaped across the room and grasped the rifle in the corner. I saw the swift movement, realized the purpose, yet had scarcely time to draw a revolver from the belt, before he had hand on the weapon, and whirled savagely about, facing us. For the instant the gloom disfigured his face—all I knew was that he was a big fellow, with ragged, untrimmed hair and a scraggly beard. I stepped forward and flung up my arm.

"Drop it!" I said shortly. "Lift that gun and you're dead!"

At first I thought him crazy enough to take the chance of my fire; then the big fingers relaxed, and the rifle fell clattering to the floor. To my surprise, the fellow laughed.

"Well, I'll be damned!" he chortled, "you here?"

He threw back his head, and I recognized him—Sam Taylor, old Ned Cowan. I drew a quick breath, my teeth clenched, my arm steady. This encounter was going to prove no boy's play.

"Put down yer popgun, boy, an' take it easy—the blame thing must go off. I reckon as how we all haven't got nuthin' ter fight fer, haw we? How ther Sam Hill did yer ever git yere?"

"Now wait," I broke in coldly. "You stand just where you are. I am not sure whether you know me or not; but I know you, Ned Cowan—I know what you did at Hot Springs, and how you took me along so as to make others believe I was guilty."

"Shucks, lad; 'twas no more than a fair fight."

"It was cold-blooded murder, Cowan!" I exclaimed indignantly, "the culmination of a feud."

"Huh who told yer that?"

I stepped aside, but still held him under the muzzle of my revolver. The change in posture brought the man face to face with Noreen; I saw him lean forward and gaze at her; then recoil, as though he viewed a ghost. She never moved, never spoke.

"Good Lord!" he muttered. "Is that Harwood's girl? Why, Anse's out huntin' after her now."

He stopped, cursing fiercely to himself. His eyes shifted their gaze from the face of the girl to mine. They were narrow cat eyes, cruel and cunning.

"I reckon I ain't seen ol' Harwood's gal afore in maybe five year," he said slowly, "but she has sure growed up fine. Anse took after marryin' her first jist ter spite Harwood, but since he seed her a while back he's sorter took a notion he wants her hisself. I reckon I don't blame him. Ther's why he wouldn't wait, but set out ter-night. No, I don't reckon, young feller, it's no particular risk. Yer a sojer an' don't jist understand how we fight out yers in the mountings. We jist strike quick, an' then git away. 'Tain't so much of a trick Anse is a-playin' at over at Lewisburg. Surs thar's five hundred Yanks thar; an' if thar was five thousand it wouldn't make no great difference the way the guard is sot. Ther whol' blame caboodle is camped in the courthouse yard, an' the only picket is at the main ford o' the Green Briar. Yer never saw nobody, did yer, gittin' out yere?"

"No," I admitted, realizing his intimate knowledge. "The camp is poorly protected."

"I reckon it is, and Anse knows that just as well as you do. An' he knows the gal yere had a room at ther hotel. Ther is where he went, aimin' fer ter raid the shebang jist before daylight." He laughed again mirthlessly. "By God, but Anse will be some mad when he finds out what has happened. I reckon he'll bout cut yer heart out."

"He will have to get me first."

"Oh, don't yer ever worry none 'bout ther, young feller. Anse will sure git yer; he knows every bridle path 'cross these mountings, an' I wouldn't give a continental damn fer no chance you've got ter git away. He's a tiger cat on a trail, Anse is—an' besides the blame fool wants the gal. He ain't no Cowan if he lets you beat him out her."

He glanced quickly across my shoulder toward the door. Perhaps she moved; perhaps it was all imagination, but I thought I heard a noise, and wheeled partly around, my eyes for an instant deserting old Cowan's face. It was his one chance, and he took it. I sensed the spring, even as Noreen's cry of warning broke the silence, but not in time to escape the grip of the old man's iron fingers. His body crashed against me with such force that I staggered and fell; one hand closed like a vise on my throat, the other gripped the stock of my revolver, crushing my fingers lifeless. I struck the edge of the table, struggling vainly to keep my feet. It went over with a crash, bearing us both along, old Ned atop, clutching fiercely to keep his hold, his eyes blazing madly down into mine. As we struck I wrenched my hand free, and pulled the trigger. The shot seemed to blaze across my own breast, burning like fire, and the next instant, the man's knee crushed my wrist to the floor, and the revolver fell from my benumbed fingers.

I seem to recall little of what followed; only a confused recollection of desperate struggling amid the legs of the overturned table; of oaths, blows, of eyes glaring revengefully into mine. I seemed to lose all knowledge, all consciousness, under the merciless throttling of those hard fingers. Then suddenly they relaxed—I caught a quick, reviving breath, another. Every nerve in me throbbled; I could see again, hear, feel. That was Noreen's face I looked into—ay, and the girl was actually dragging the fellow off me! I took another breath, a long one, moving so that the inert body rolled over on its side; then I rose up, supporting myself on one arm, and stared about, sobbing in the first effort to gain control.

"Noreen!" the name choked in my throat.

"Yes; it's all right now—Cowan is dead."

"Dead! You—you killed him?"

"No; it must have been your shot. I had no chance; you—you two fought like madmen—then—then he jist let go of you, and fell back. I was afraid to come—I thought at first he had killed you."

"My shot! why the revolver jist went off," I muttered, scarcely comprehending. "See! the bullet burned me across the chest, and there is blood there. And you say it struck Want Ads."

him? Lord! I never knew. Help me to sit up, Noreen."

With the aid of her arms I found support against the table. The blue coat I wore showed clearly the mark of the bullet, and blood discolored the burned cloth. I ran my hand within, touching the flesh.

"A mere scratch," I said lightly, "requiring a little water. Don't cry, Noreen; there is no harm done; I'll be all right in a minute. Are you sure Cowan is dead?"

"Yes; he—hasn't moved since; but—but I didn't kill him."

"Of course no, and I'm glad I did. This is part of my trade, and I'll not lose any sleep over it. Ah! I can get up alone, and the first thing I am going to do is to bar that door."

CHAPTER XXII.

We Understand Each Other.

Noreen had drawn away from the body of the dead man, and stood against the farther log wall, with face hidden in her hands. Cowan lay at full length, one arm thrown across his eyes. I bent over him, touching his flesh with my fingers. The ball had penetrated his abdomen, and how the fellow ever fought so fiercely after receiving his death wound I can never understand. I think that in his mad ferocity he was scarcely aware that he was hurt. I turned him partly over, and drew out from the inside pocket of his blouse a handful of papers concealed there. One was a buff packet, which had been roughly torn open—the one taken from Major Harwood the night of his murder.

The packet contained several official papers, but the principal paper was a carefully prepared list of irregulars operating throughout the mountain country, with names of the better-known leaders, the estimated strength of each separate gang, the region in which they hid, and the side they espoused, if any. This had evidently been carefully prepared by some staff officer, undoubtedly Major Harwood himself, as the letter referred to him as having been detailed to such duty, and was full and complete. I found therein this mention of the Cowans: "Father and two sons; probably control fifty or more men, with headquarters near Union in Green Briar mountains; raid indiscriminately; have attacked our forage trains; refuse to co-operate, and continue to terrorize a large section; raided Lewisburg before it was occupied by troops, killing several, and looting the shops. Is considered the most dangerous gang operating in Green Briar and Monroe counties; reports of atrocities received almost daily, many too hideous to repeat."

I glanced up at Noreen, and her eyes met mine inquiringly.

"Is this your father's handwriting?" I asked, holding the paper toward him.

"Yes; what is it—important?"

"Not very complimentary to Cowan here. A report to General Halleck, at Washington, of conditions in western Virginia. I wonder how the old villain ever learned that such a paper was being forwarded?"

A man evidently laboring under great excitement rushed up to the policeman on duty at the railway station.

"Somebody stole my car," he cried.

"What kind of a car was it?" asked the officer.

"A Foolish Four."

"Serves you right for being so careless," returned the cop. "Didn't you see them signs all over the station: Look Out for Pickpockets?"

Mr. and Mrs. Gotrox had just settled down into their new mansion, with billiard room, library and boudoir complete.

Proudly the good lady showed some of her new acquaintances over the place, expatiating on the cost of everything.

"Is your husband a bibliomaniac?" asked one lady, who Mrs. Gotrox showed them into the library, where every book was a leather-bound edition de luxe.

The hostess stared coldly at her questioner.

"Certainly not," she snapped, in offended tones. "He doesn't bibble a

HOW SHE ENDED TEN YEARS OF SKIN-TORTURE

Oct. 28, 1914:—"I had eczema on my face for ten years. Little red pimples formed in a small spot on my chin and then spread all over my face. They itched and burned awfully. It was certainly embarrassing to me, and I would not go amongst people. I tried almost every remedy and treatment that could be used for this trouble, but nothing did me any good. I used Resinol Ointment and Resinol Soap, and was relieved in a day or two. In one month I was cured. This was six months ago and the trouble has never returned." (Signed) Mrs. C. C. The Resinol treatment speedily heals eczema, rashes, ringworm, and other eruptions, and clears away disfiguring pimples and blackheads, even when other treatments prove worse than useless. Doctors have prescribed Resinol Ointment and Resinol Soap for eighteen years, and all druggists sell them.

CONFERENCE CLOSES WITH BIG MEETINGS

NUMBER OF DELEGATES AT MILTON CONVENTION EXCEEDED ALL FORMER TOTALS.

SATURDAY FEAST DAY

Significance of Having Saturday as Sabbath Is Clearly Explained—Next Conference to West Virginia.

Milton, Wisconsin, August 30.—Sunday was the last day of the conference. After reports of various committees concerning denominational work, W. M. Davis of Chicago gave an address upon "Business Opportunities of Seventh Day Baptists." Mr. Davis is a business man of Chicago, and spoke from a large personal experience in a positive manner. He said that while some are looking for an opening others proceed to make one. Lack of employment often means lack of preparation. Mr. Davis had asked various men of various lines of business whether such opportunities are better or poorer than twenty-five years ago. Nearly every answer was to the effect that they are just as good or better. Though the Sabbath is a handicap, the standing call is for men who are able to do things and are willing to do hard work. The main problem is a wise choice of occupation. It is best to be one's own employer. "Back to the soil" is a good slogan for us. The teaching profession is a wide open door—and so is matrimony. It is a question that should be seriously studied. Many who leave the Sabbath for the sake of business leave religion altogether.

The afternoon session opened with a concert given by the orchestra which was followed by an address by Mrs. Mary Lewis Langworthy of Chicago, daughter of the late Rev. Dr. A. H. Lewis, a great man of blessed memory among Seventh Day Baptists, on "Raising the Standards of Home Life." It was a most earnest plea for the best possible training of children in the home. She deplored the presence in the home of many of the popular magazines and music of these days. She urged that children be trained to courtesy in the home, and be taught obedience. If loving and kind parents are not taught in the home they will never be acquired. Let us begin in our homes to set high standards.

Dr. Lena E. Sadler, wife of Dr. W. S. Sadler, who gave his lecture here last night, spoke on the "Science of Suggestion in Relation to Child Culture." The character of the child is formed early. It needs early training in self-control to be able to go to sleep in the dark alone. Children are taught to lie by unwise treatment by parents. It is natural for children to tell the truth. Wise leading is what children need. If they ever need whipping it is when they absolutely refuse to obey—then the punishment should be such as cannot be forgotten. Common, easy kindness will go a great way toward leading children into righteousness. Dr. Lena is a most lively, vivacious speaker who makes lasting impressions. Let everyone who has a chance to do so, hear her.

The next address was given by President Booth C. Davis of Alfred College, New York. His topic was "The Home and Religion." He said that there should be an understanding between two young people before they are married concerning what the religious life of the coming home is to be. There should be a definite religious life in every home. Nothing is sweeter to me in memory than the family altar in my childhood home back in the hills of West Virginia. Young people should not be sent to Sabbath school and church, but lovingly led there by the parents. All along they should be surrounded by a wholesome, pleasant religious atmosphere.

At 4:30, at the Seventh Day Baptist church, eighteen young people were baptized by immersion for church membership. It was a most beautiful and impressive service.

The conference closed Sunday evening. Though it was a rainy day, the gymnasium was filled almost to overflowing. At some of the meetings there have been 1,200 present. It has been a great meeting—the largest conference in the history of the church. Through it all a sweet spirit of harmony has prevailed.

The following named officers have been elected for the coming year: President, Professor Samuel B. Bond, Salem, West Virginia. Recording Secretary, Professor Earl P. Saunders, Alfred, New York. Corresponding Secretary, Rev. H. N. Jordan, Milton Junction, Wis. Treasurer, Rev. W. C. Whitford, Alfred, New York.

The next meeting of the conference will be held at Salem, West Virginia, Saturday Great Day.

Saturday was the great day of the feast. This denomination is distinguished from other Baptists because they believe the seventh day of the week to be the true Sabbath. While other denominations speak of the Christian Sabbath, these Seventh Day Baptists designate the day of their worship as the Bible Sabbath. Though now well known everywhere, this denomination is not young. There were Seventh Day Baptist churches in England as far back as 1650; and in New England in 1872. From there the denomination moved westward and now its churches are scattered all over our country.

The denomination does not increase its members as the years go by. Seventh Day Baptists have a tendency to go west; and so they become scattered. When a family moves from the home church, a place among strangers, the boys and girls lose their own church privileges, and it is easy to understand that by and by they are, through their changed environment, drawn away from the Sabbath of their fathers. And so it has come to pass that all over our country, especially beyond the Mississippi, there are thousands of people of Seventh Day Baptist antecedents, but who do not now observe what they really believe to be the Sabbath. As a matter of fact, these scattered people—those who leave the Sabbath of their early days and do not keep religiously any Sabbath at all. All this results in keeping down the membership of the denomination. But those who are loyal to their early training and now make up the working membership of the church are the very loyal indeed; and they are a conscientious people, withal, true to their convictions in spite of their business handicap, the fact that the day of their worship is commonly considered the best day in the week for business.

On this Sabbath of the conference the college gymnasium held the biggest audiences that have ever crowded into it. During the forenoon two sermons were preached, the first by the Rev. W. L. Burdick of Alfred, New York; text, "But Christ Is All in All"; the second by the Rev. Edwin Shaw of Plainfield, New Jersey, text, "O How I Love Thy Law."

The music for this service was rendered by a choir of fifty well-trained singers under the leadership of Professor A. E. White of Milton College. Particularly good was the rendition of "Festival Te Deum" by Dudley Buck. It was a noble sacred song, sung with the spirit and the understanding by devoted young men and women.

It may be said here that all the music of the conference is of a high order. The congregational music of thousands of voices led by Professor Paul Schmidt of New York City, and evangelistic singer. He has the ability to get out of the audience a great volume of consecrated music.

Professor Schmidt leads also the conference orchestra, which has among its performers some skilled music teachers, among them the well-known Grand sisters, Miss Albert and Mrs. Ellen Place, violinists.

The big conference male chorus is under the leadership of Professor L. Springer of Milton Junction, Wis. And then there is a well-trained quartet of young men whose sacred music is beautiful indeed.

During the afternoon there was a big platform meeting at which the following stirring addresses were given: "Training for Life Work—Four Years Above the Mists," Robert West of Salem, West Virginia; "Everyone Studying the Bible," Rev. H. C. Van Hise of Shawnee, Blaine Island; "The Call of the Home Fields," Rev. George B. Shaw, North Loup, Nebraska; "The Appeal of the Foreign Fields," Rev. W. L. Skaggs, Nortonville, Kansas; "Christian Endeavor a Denominational Asset," Courtland D. Davis, Salem, West Virginia; "Giving Our Money and Ourselves," Rev. T. L. Gardner, Plainfield, New Jersey, editor of the Sabbath Recorder.

After the close of this session there was a young people's rally in a nearby grove, where discussions of interest to them occupied an hour.

It may be said here that there are at this conference hundreds of young people, from babies all along up to that invisible line where people are not young any more. Some of these here are becoming grizzled, and their hair is thinning out; yet they call themselves young. It is inspiring to see so large a company of coming men and women, almost every one of them earnest Christians, the majority of them students in high school, college or university—or teachers of those still younger.

One of the largest audiences of the conference gathered in the evening to listen to a sacred concert of both vocal and orchestral music. This concert was followed by an address by Dr. W. S. Sadler from Chicago on the "Philosophy of Faith and Fear." Dr. Sadler is known as one of the best of Chautauqua lecturers. There is no giving the substance of his address, as it may be said that, though it was full of common sense and optimism concerning good health, he kept his audience in a roar of laughter from the beginning of his talk till the last word. It was certainly good dose for the jinx-jams.

At the close of the lecture the village band gave a sacred concert at the school house park.

WISCONSIN LIVESTOCK BREEDERS ARE GIVEN ADVISE ON EXHIBITION.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.] Madison, Wis., Aug. 30.—Wisconsin livestock breeders have been advised by D. O. Lively, superintendent of livestock at the Panama-Pacific exposition, in a telegram by Secretary of Agriculture, Hopland, that entries for horses will close Sept. 1, and that if mailed on that date will be accepted if intending exhibitors have not received entry blanks. These entries must specify the age, breeding, type, class, etc.

The horse show beginning next month is the first of the important livestock shows to be held at the exposition. The lifting of the quarantine in practically all of the states has removed fears that its existence might imperil the success of the shows. Now shipments to San Francisco may proceed unimpeded. It is said further by exposition officials that ample funds are available to defray all expenses, the exposition now being on a profitable basis. Its net profits for the last three weeks of July amounted to $210,243.

Dates of the livestock shows are: Horses, Sept. 30-Oct. 13; cattle, Oct. 13-Nov. 1; sheep, goats, etc., Nov. 3-15; carriages, Nov. 15-18; poultry and pigeons, Nov. 18-28; dogs, cats and pet stock, Nov. 28-Dec. 1; children's pets, Dec. 1-13. Almost a half million dollars has been devoted to these shows.

NEW ZEPPELIN AIR SHIP DIFFERS LITTLE FROM PREDECESSORS

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.] Geneva, Switzerland, Aug. 30.—The latest Zeppelin airship constructed at Friedrichshafen differs little from its predecessors, according to details from Rome today. On the Swiss side of Lake Constance, in only one important feature and two minor changes. A small platform has been provided on the top of the balloon for a cannon to protect the ship from aeroplanes. The speed has been increased by additional propeller and motor. Owing to this extra weight, however, the carrying power of the Zeppelin is diminished. The new airship is a slate color. The total cost of this latest model, $500,000, double the cost of the first Zeppelins produced. It is reported from Germany that the greatest difficulty in the use of Zeppelins is the lack of capable pilots, most of the best men having been killed or made prisoners.

BLIND MAN IS MADE TO SEE

Extraordinary Operation by Which Sight Was Restored to Miner Whose Eyes Were Shattered.

The following description of a wonderful operation which restored the sight of a miner named B. Cahn, who was totally blind for over a year as the result of a mine explosion, has been given by one of the surgeons of the Royal Ophthalmic hospital in London, England.

"When the patient first came to the hospital the right eye was totally destroyed, while the left one was intensely inflamed, and the cornea, or projecting front part, was dotted with fragments of quartz blown into it at the time of the explosion. The capsule of the lens had been torn by other jagged particles of rock and the whole lens had been absorbed. Only the capsule remained to separate the fluid in the ball of the eye from the iris, or colored screen which surrounds the pupil.

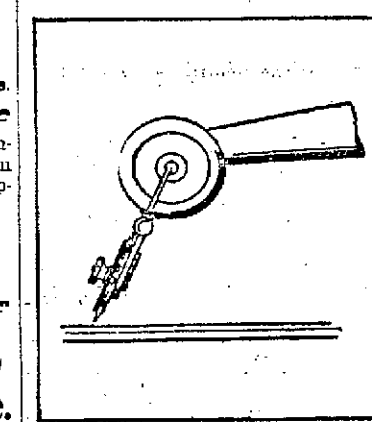

"The first treatment consisted of picking out the quartz particles, some of which were embedded even in the muscles which rotate the eye. Then the irritation was reduced by lotions. The greater part of the cornea was opaque, on account of old scar tissue, the result of the early inflammation, but a fairly transparent part was selected, and a portion of the iris, or screen behind this, was then cut away, so as to let the light fall on the sensitive retina, or lining of the back part of the eye.

"As the man's natural lens within his eye had already been destroyed, he now has to wear a glass lens before the eye to make the entering rays of light focus correctly on his retina. His range of vision is limited, but he can read the finest type easily, and instead of ending his days in an institute for the blind, he should be able to earn his own living at some employment which does not make too great a demand on the eyesight."

HANDY ON TALKING MACHINE

Attachment Holds Needles and Saves Trouble of Changing on Every Record That is Played.

One of the little steel needles used on a talking machine is worn out on each record and a new needle has to be inserted each time. A Pennsylvania man has invented an automatic magazine needle holder which saves all this trouble by holding about a dozen needles and turning a new one down for each record. The holder is a disk with grooves in for the insertion of the needles and a plate to hold them in place. A thumb screw clamps the plate on and removes it, and also turns the disk around to place a new needle in position each time. The same magazine will hold wooden needles, too, for, though the wooden ones last longer than the steel, they also must be changed about every third record. This little contrivance not only saves the operator of the phonograph time and trouble, but adds to his own enjoyment of the music thereby.

Albert Mamaux, star pitcher of the Pittsburgh Pirates and rated in true class of Alexander and Johnson, cost the Smoky City club not a cent. He is a native of Pittsburgh, where he has made a record on the sand lots, and was given a try-out this spring on the recommendation of his grandfather, who is something of a baseball fan.

FORTY YEARS AGO

The Janesville Daily Gazette, Aug. 30, 1875.—The workmen began the foundation of Mrs. Beales' building today. Thirty days of good weather will see the block up and enclosed.
 William Tripp of the town of Rock was injured today by falling from the roof of a barn. Dr. Loomis went out to see him, but did not return in time to give us particulars.
 The first pound of the 1,200 pound bell which was reshipped to the foundry some time since, has returned home in the shape of two additional bells (small ones) and are now at the depot. So we have got four bells for one, finally.
 New Orleans, Aug. 30.—There was a duel here last night, in the dark, distance four feet, weapons six-shooters, between Charles Corrich and J. M. Turner. Three shots were fired when Turner was killed. It was a trivial quarrel.
 New Rocherney, Aug. 20.—Several stores burned this morning. Loss, $50,000. Insurance small.
 C. P. Culver of the town of Janesville and Dr. J. B. Whitling of this city are the senatorial delegates to the democratic state convention. They were instructed to go for Taylor first, last and all the time. And so they are hampered with instructions, loaded down, completely shackled.

All Low "After-Cost" Records Broken

The "first cost" of an automobile is a big consideration to any sane man, but the "after cost" is an even bigger consideration to any man who wants to remain sane in his automobile investment.

The "after cost" or upkeep is what a car costs you to maintain, run, and enjoy, after you have bought it, and it is mighty hard to enjoy an automobile if it costs you too much to run.

The Maxwell has lowered all economy records for:

- 1st—Miles per set of tires
- 2nd—Miles per gallon of gasoline
- 3rd—Miles per quart of lubricating oil
- 4th—Lowest year-in-and-year-out repair bills
